IS LONDON IMMORAL?

The Capital of the British Empire a Comparatively Pure City.

Its Immensity—Is the Rendezvous of the World—Home Life There.

Is London a den of immorality? If one may judge from the jeremiads of noisy journalists who dread obscurity, and of prurient people to whom the notoriety of a platform is fame, this is really the question of the day. Prints filthier than anything which the literacy of Holywell street can command assure us that, compared with the English capital, Sodom was a village of snug respectability, and that the citizens of Gomorrah, if weighed in the balance against what is vaguely described as "the West-Enders"—a term which includes the Seven Dials and Pimlico—were worthy of being examples to serious families. But evidently scores of people who read the prints in question—but throw them out of the carriage window before returning to the bosom of their families—take for granted that their neighbors are steeped in sin, and they are about the only virtuous souls in a stiff-necked generation abandoned to vices which only excitable women speak of in the presence of dirty-minded creatures of the opposite sex.

IMMENSITY OF LONDON.

No city, we except Pekin, has half as many people within its bounds. Where in the world are four millions of souls congregated within the same space? In what city in Christendom do so many nationalities find a common home? There are enough Frenchmen to make two average-sized towns; enough Germans to populate four; Greeks sufficient to supply knaves for half of Europe; and more Jews than there are in Jerusalem. The Irish in London would repeople Dublin, did the prayed-for earthquake overwhelm the unhappy isle; and were the Roman Catholics all to emigrate the Pope could find out of their number subjects sufficient to fill some fresh estates of the church. Its professional criminals are about as numerous as are the virtuous people in many a city with a mayor and corporation, and, not to mention the disciples of Mr. George, there are thieves and lunatics enough to start an Alsatia or a Bedlam in some island of the ocean. Here, within the circuit of a few miles, are as many people as in Canada, and more than in the whole of Holland. London exceeds by something like three times the entire Norwegian nation, and by several thousands the Portuguese. Yet, compared with any of these foreign cities or countries, she is, after allowing for the residuum of vice which always remains where many people are gathered together, a marvel of virtuous dullness. Foreigners who come to London yarn over her domestic innocence, and the most vicious require to exercise some ingenuity before they can discover the means of passing a wet Sunday in the worst society. Vice there is in plenty, of a coarse, vulgar order. But it is all on the surface, while in the continental city, being confined within doors, it is able to resist in excesses unknown and unattempted here.

LONDON, THE RENDEZVOUS OF THE WORLD.

All the richest, the idlest, the least regenerate of our country gravitate hither, impelled as if by a sort of irresistible impulse. Foreigners come here for business, for pleasure, for society. The wealthy Englishman who has earned a fortune in the colonies or in the East hies to London to spend it; and the vast commerce of the exchange of the earth brings into our midst a constant succession of all that is worst in the worst countries of Pagandom, and what is still by courtesy called Christendom. It would, therefore, be remarkable if a diligent search could not discover that some of the four millions practice some of the vices which are indigenous to the countries whence they are drafted, or with the natives of which they come into contact. If all the nameless crimes which are now and again brought to light through the police or the police courts were massed together, it would not be difficult for one of these ingenious statisticians who can prove anything by figures to demonstrate that London is the chosen home of every foulness which makes men ashamed of their species, and causes them to doubt the wisdom of confining capital punishment to murder and high treason. It would be equally easy to show that London was a Utopia, or a general lunatic asylum, or the Land of the Amazons, or the home of every virtue or vice of foolishness or idiocy known to the Old Bailey or to the Lady Novelist. The mere announcement of the suppositious existence of such things fill people with amazement. Parliament is shocked, the Lord Mayor is in a fever, the Home Secretary is at his wits-end, and the people with a taste for crime are ready to part with their last crowns and five-shillings for what in ordinary times is rather dear at a penny. There are some things which public decency counsels to be left alone, though no one for that reason considers that judgment ought to go by default.

HOME LIFE IN LONDON.

In no city in the world is home life more cultivated than in London. We marry young, and large families are the rule. They are not so in Paris, or in other equally prudent, but not prudish capitals. Our charities are all-abounding, our hands are never out of our pockets, and in a hundred ways we display a kindliness of heart unknown in towns where vice—that is, selfishness—predominates. An Englishman is hospitable, and his first thought is to invite a stranger to his house. He may be for long the familiar of a Frenchman, or a Spaniard, or an Italian, or even a German or a Russian before he is introduced to his wife or daughters, and in most European countries such is the fear of contamination which experience has taught, that a man is exceptionally placed if he is ever permitted to see his future wife without some member of the family being within hail. London is a huge city, and one no better than we should wish it to be. It is full of poverty, and is defiled with crime and vice of every sort. But, considering its size, the freedom which its citizens enjoy, and the luxury of many of them, it is moral to a miracle. Not long ago John Burroughs, the American essayist, visited us, and has put on record a charming picture of the English capital as it presented itself to him after trying his best to investigate its ways, in the same fashion that he had done the cities of the New World. "It is not malignant," he writes, "on the contrary, is perhaps as normal and legitimate a city as there is on the globe. See their vast parks and pleasure grounds; see the upper Thames on a bright Sunday, alive with rowing parties; see them picnicing in all the country adjacent. Indeed, in summer a social and even festive air broods over the whole vast encampment."

COSMOPOLITAN LONDON.

London is so cosmopolitan that it is no one's business to defend it, as would be the case were a smaller town maligned. It is supposed to be "big enough to take care of itself." But it is serving no good cause, and doing a deadly mischief to public morals to represent, either out of ignorance or out of bigotry, the town as utterly vile, merely because some extremely exceptional traits of disgusting vice have been reported from the highest and the lowest strata of its population. Boswell was in many respects not a very wise man. He had, however, the good sense to see that the "narrow minds" of certain men view the metropolis through the light of their own spectacles. The politician regards it as the seat of government, the grazier as the best market for cattle, the merchant as an exchange, the man of pleasure as an assemblage of taverns and those who frequent them. But "the intellectual man is struck with it as comprehending the whole of human life in all its variety, the contemplation of which is inexhaustible. So says the Pictorial (London) World.

OUR OWN PROVINCE.

Breakers Ahead — Grave Questions Worthy Consideration.

The Aim of Every Government—Expenditure of Money.

Following up his remarks of a few days since "More Anon" writes The Times that the recapitulation of political errors if formulated for selfish motives leads to personal recriminations injurious to the questions under discussion, and are frequently lost sight of altogether in an exchange of meaningless words, instead of an exchange of well digested and impartial views. It may be, as frequently noted that there are always a number of people capable of correcting errors after their committal, but who are totally inefficient to conceive more favorable schemes, or to prevent the occurrence of blunders of which they complain afterward. In our province, as elsewhere, these peculiar individuals are to be found, who have been in the habit of accepting anything in any form, if put forward by a certain class of people, and fringed with the necessary amount of nonsense to tickle their vanity. The large expenditure of public money in the Province has also had the effect of stunting their intelligence with temporary gain, leaving the future to take care of itself, or rather trust to luck and the future for deliverance from every wrong which the more perceptive saw would eventually occur. The highest aim of every government should be to improve the condition of its subjects, by diminishing the burthens of the weaker, and adding to their social and intellectual enjoyment. To equalize taxation, and reduce competition, so as to diminish poverty and crime. To have the same care and regard for the protection of life as for the protection of industries. To distribute wealth, or the savings from labor, by wise and judicious enactments, instead of measures leading to its

CENTRALIZATION AND DESPOTISM.

To compel the proper utilization of the public domain for productive instead of speculative purposes; to bear in mind that the earth, not made by human hands, was not intended for the mercenary use of a few, but for the well being of the many equally entitled to life and the enjoyments of life as those who are now possessed of large portions of its surface by fraud or the strong arm of force. Granted that these are amongst some of the duties to be performed by the various governments of the future, how frightfully derelict have been the functions of past and present governments in these and other respects. Instead of building up the Dominion with the muscular energy of its own race, capital has been concentrated in the hands of the few, protection given to the manufacturer and the labor, the producer of wealth, crushed by over competition in the interest of class greed. Two-thirds of the public works in British Columbia have been executed by coolie labor at rates far below what were essential to a white man's existence, and thousands of would-be hardy settlers from the east, who came here to improve their condition, have been driven from their own territory beneath the protection of an alien flag, and yet we sing of creating an empire! An empire of what? Why slaves and creatures of despotic system of government, intermingled with British paupers, who will treat present rulers with becoming deference, without intelligence enough to question their benevolent intentions, or courage sufficient to demur at the most iniquitous measures.

MURDERS EAST AND WEST.

robbery and crime in our immediate neighborhood, men daily sinking lower in the social grade—it matters not. No hope of advancement left with the cruel fact staring them in the face, that at the present high rate of commodities, and the demands of a higher state of civilization and Christian charity, they cannot compete with the unified hordes of Asiatics soon to be let loose on the province like Vampires, not knew that they must either sink to their level or die, or go elsewhere. For this the Chinese are not to blame. As we seek to ascend in the scale of comfort so do they, and in such a sense are equally entitled so to do. On whom then falls the blame, this grievous wrong? and who can we hold responsible? Why those who brought them here and have gained by their presence. Those who have made the money must be made to redeem the crime; and in justice should be made to defray the cost of exporting the Chinese to their own country. Forty dollars per head was paid for their introduction. Compel these men to send them back; they brought them here in their special interest. In the interest of the whole country, now that they have no further use for them they should be made to send them back.

Try Ayer's Pills, and be cured. Misery is a mild word to describe the mischief to body and mind caused by habitual constipation. The regular use of Ayer's Cathartic Pills, in mild doses, will restore the torpid viscera to healthy action.

Chief Engineer Charles J. Phillips, Victoria Fire Department, is in the field for re-election next October.

THE LAST SPIKE

To be Driven Without any Public Ceremony or Celebration.

Favorable Tariff Rates for this Province to be Adopted.

The long looked for official information announcing the completion of the Canadian Pacific railway for traffic from all points on the company's lines in the east to the end of the track in this province, is now made. Monday, the 5th of October, will be regarded as in our history. On that day the Canadian Pacific Railway company will open for traffic a continuous line from the east to the very heart of British Columbia. The stations along the north shore of Lake Superior are all named; divisional headquarters have been selected, and every preparation made to meet any demand that may be made on the company's facilities for the transportation of freight or passengers by their unrivalled equipment.

DRIVING THE LAST SPIKE.

The Times is in position to announce that the gap between the Onderdonk gang and those in charge of Mr. Ross will be closed in three weeks' time at the furthest. The rails will then be laid and the last spike driven between the 14th and 17th of October. While the occasion will be a memorable one, as making a new epoch not only in the history of British Columbia but also in that of Canada, there will be no public celebration. It is not likely that even any of the directors will witness the event. As already stated His Excellency the Governor-General is coming to this province over the line and should he return that way it is possible advantage will be taken of his presence, and that he will witness the laying of the last rail and the honor conferred on him of driving the last spike, in the most gigantic railway enterprise of modern days. It is understood that many have expressed a wish to be permitted to witness the important event, but the company has wisely decided not to run excursions, or celebrate the event in any public manner.

TRAFFIC OPERATIONS.

Although the line will be completed as above stated it is not intended to open the line west of the Selkirks for traffic till next May. This step is rendered necessary in consequence of the amount of work still to be done in the way of ballasting, erection of water tanks, station buildings and shops—works in themselves not very costly, yet requiring time. It has also been deemed prudent to study the action of the snow in the Selkirks at least one winter before commencing operations. Interruptions would be certain and it is well to know exactly what has to be provided against.

THE TELEGRAPH SERVICE

will be connected simultaneously with the track, possibly by the first week in October. The line will be only a temporary one from the Shuswap Lakes to the east crossing of the Columbia. A month or two subsequently will be required to make a permanent line of it. No business over the telegraph line will be accepted by the company till next spring.

ASSUMING CONTROL OF THE ONDERDONK CONTRACT.

It is understood that the government has notified the company that the Pacific contract, under the Superintendence of Mr. Onderdonk has been completed. The company's engineer, who came here to report as to whether the line had been constructed in accordance with the plans and specifications, and the general condition of the line, had not, when our advices left Montreal, reached that city. If his report be favorable the line will pass under the control of the Canadian Pacific Company within a short time, possibly about the middle of October.

TRANSPORTATION CHARGES.

The company have decided on adopting such a scale of charges as will place the people of this province on the same footing as those exacted from the public in other sections of Canada, and leave no room for just cause of complaint. The object of the company is to make such rates as will insure the most perfect development of business along the entire line.

NEW WESTMINSTER AND COAL HARBOR.

It is the determination of the company to build a branch line to New Westminster, simultaneously with the extension of the main line to Coal Harbor and English Bay. The engineers have received instructions to proceed with the location of the lines at once; to prepare plans showing the nature and character of the work to be done, in order that construction may be begun at the earliest date possible.

BURRARD INLET AND ENGLISH BAY.

One of the executive officers, whose word can be considered authoritive, still asserts that the whole of Burrard Inlet from Port Moody to English Bay will be required for terminal purposes before many years. Others who are conversant with the rise and progress of the traffic of transcontinental railways also endorse that belief.

DOCKS AND BUILDINGS AT THE TERMINUS.

The construction of docks, buildings and other facilities will be proceeded with at the terminus so soon as a few simple matters of detail can be arranged. When these have been begun it will be found that the Canadian Pacific Railway company, in respect to their terminal facilities, will be in advance of all requirements of traffic, and the works on this coast, in keeping with their magnificent buildings in other sections of Canada and the unrivalled elegance of their rolling stock. By the dawn of the new year, all assertions to the contrary, these will be well advanced.

A CHINAMAN SHOT

In a N. W. Gambling Den While Resisting Arrest.

Special to The Times.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Sept. 19.—On Friday evening, at Port Hammond, as Mr. Moresby and special Constables McNeil and Ball endeavored to arrest a Chinaman in a gambling hall for stealing $40, the Chinese resisted and drew knives. A scuffle ensued, during which Officer Ball shot the accused. His wound is not very serious.

"Blood food" is the suggestive name often given to Ayer's Sarsaparilla, because of its blood-enriching qualities.

NEWS BY CABLE.

TO-DAY'S DESPATCHES.

Revolution in Bulgaria.

Special to The Times.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Populace of Philippolis, the capital of Eastern Roumania, almost to a man rose in rebellion yesterday and seized the Governor-General, deposed the government, and proclaimed a union with Bulgaria. A provisional government was established. The revolt was so well planned that no disorder or bloodshed occurred, everybody being in sympathy with the movement except the government officials. Foreigners in the city are perfectly safe from harm, as is also the property of foreign residents. After the organization of a provisional government the militia were sworn in, taking the oath of allegiance to Prince Alexander, of Bulgaria. It is generally believed in diplomatic circles that Russia arranged the programme of the rising and suggested a union with Bulgaria. No definite statement can be made at present as to what action the signatory powers to the treaty of Berlin will make respecting the matter. Eastern Roumania was created by the Congress of Berlin, in 1878, and given autonomic government, though forming an integral part of the Turkish Empire. The Governor-General was appointed subject to the approval of treaty powers.

Yap Occupied.

Special to The Times.

MADRID, Sept. 19.—It is reported that it was announced at the Cabinet Council yesterday that the Spaniards had occupied Yap, and the Spanish man-of-war Valentia is to replace the Velasis, which has been selected for the service of carrying stores to that station.

The Cholera.

Special to The Times.

ROME, Sept. 19.—During the past 24 hours 224 new cases of cholera and 167 deaths from the same disease were reported in Palermo, a large increase over the preceding 24 hours.

The Austrian Empress.

Special to The Times.

VIENNA, Sept. 19.—The Empress of Austria has sailed in the Imperial yacht on a pleasure trip to last three weeks.

The Great Cricket Match.

Special to The Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—The international cricket game was resumed here this morning, and the Philadelphia team finished their second innings for 178 runs, making the total 378. The Englishmen commenced their second innings, having 232 runs to make to win the game.

THE RESPITED RIEL.

His Case Carried to the Highest Court in the Empire.

In a recent issue the Montreal Gazette says: The appeal to the court of Queen's bench of Manitoba in the Riel case has resulted in a unanimous judgment upholding the competency of the jurisdiction of Judge Richardson and the legality of the trial. A second appeal to the privy council will, it is reported, be made, and if so, it may become necessary to grant a brief reprieve to the condemned man, pending the decision of the highest court in the empire. To hang Riel and then discover that the court which tried and sentenced him was not legally clothed with jurisdiction would be more than awkward; it would enormously intensify the sympathy for Riel entertained by a considerable number of people, and lead possibly to serious consequences. Even those who clamor loudest for the punishment of the author of the rebellion cannot desire other than that the execution of justice shall be made by process as to the legality of which no doubt can be entertained, and knowing that sympathy for Riel has been based not a little upon the impression that his trial was not had before a properly constituted tribunal, the decision of the privy council will permit of his punishment without exciting race prejudice or passion. The Manitoba judges seem also to have declared that the insanity plea is not in their opinion well founded, and although not experts, although they had not even the opportunity of seeing and hearing Riel, the declaration is not devoid of significance. If an appeal to the privy council is sought, there can be no question as to the sentence until it can be heard.

There is one point about the Riel case which does not appear to be generally understood, and that is, with reference to the action to be taken by the government. The fact of the matter is that the government simply takes no action at all if it is considered advisable that the execution should be delayed. The law governing executions in the Northwest Territories is different from that in force in the provinces. In the latter, after a judge has pronounced sentence of death and fixed the day of execution, the sentence is carried out unless respite or pardon is granted by the Governor-General. In the Northwest after sentence has been passed and the date fixed, the execution cannot take place until the warrant of the Governor-General has been issued, ordering the sentence to be carried into execution. It may be remembered that last year two brothers named Stephenson, were under sentence to be hanged at Regina. An appeal for the exercise of executive clemency was made to His Excellency, and an investigation ordered by the Minister of Justice, the order for the execution being meanwhile not issued. The day appointed by the judge arrived, but no warrant having been received the execution was postponed, somewhat to the chagrin of an enterprising Winnipeg reporter, who knowing that no reprieve had been received and not knowing that none was required, published a graphic account of the execution which did not take place until some months later.

—Sir John Macdonald returned to Ottawa this week to be present at the Cabinet Council to consider the Riel matter.

—Archbishop Taché of St. Boniface was in Ottawa and had several interviews with members of the Cabinet in regard to the disposition of Riel. His Grace declined to be interviewed on the subject.

—It was expected that the applicants for taking a supply of salmon ova for the river hatcheries would go up to Harrison river to-day. The hatchery will probably turn out from six to five million fry next spring.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

QUEEN VICTORIA is bothered by cranks. One of them sought her last week to present her with a common glass bottle which he said was a "magical mirror."

THE tables have turned and the revenge may be terrible. A Missouri coachman's wife has eloped. He could not hold her with the whiplash of his love, and she stocked away.

THE late MAJ.-GEN. RICHARD LLOYD THOMPSON was one of the few remaining Lucknow heroes. He was with HAVELOCK's force during the entire rebellion of 1857.

KING ALFONSO, by CAMPOS' bad advice, will proclaim martial laws in the towns where the people have indulged in demonstrations against Germany and himself.

THE Five Nations of Indians were the Mohawks, Oneidas, Cayugas, Onondagas, and Senecas. In the year 1711 the Tuscarora tribe withdrew from the Carolinas and joined the Five Nations, which were afterward known as the Six Nations.

ACCORDING to GEN. BOOTH, the Salvation army flies its colors in seventeen countries, numbers 7050 corps of soldiers and 2650 paid officers. The army publishes twenty newspapers, reaching half a million readers every week.

THE area sowed with wheat for this year's harvest in California exceeds 2,000,000 acres, and the area in barley was 583,776 acres. The area occupied by other staple crops was as follows: Oats, 78,400 acres; corn 136,072 acres; hay, 100,092 acres.

THE statement is made at the Western Union Telegraph office, in Washington city, that although notice has been posted for nearly a month announcing that subscriptions to the GRANT monument would be received, not one cent has been donated.

MR. GLADSTONE and LORD ROSEBERY have each written a letter for publication, stating the question of the disestablishment of the Scotch church is purely a matter for Scotchmen to deal with, and ought to be made a test question at the coming parliamentary election.

AT the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, PRANG & Co. have set up a comparative exhibit of original water color paintings, and their chromo-lithographic reproductions. A complete series of plates represents the different stages in the printing of a chromo-lithograph in twenty colors.

A MISS BAXTER, of Scotland, gave, during her life to the London Missionary society $35,000 in special gifts, and nearly $43,000 more in ships for the New Guinea mission. The cause of missions furthermore so enlisted her sympathetics that she left a legacy of $25,000 for the work.

AN interesting case has been introduced in the English courts to decide how much of a book may be reprinted by a newspaper without violating the copyright. The occasion of the suit was the republication by the Pall Mall Gazette of enough matter from GEN. GORDON's Khartoum diaries to fill two of its pages.

THE additions made to the Presbyterian churches of this country last year on examination number 42,072, the gain by conversion being about 4 per cent of the whole membership reported in 1884, and representing an average addition of about seven new converts to each of the 6,093 churches.

EMPEROR WILLIAM is an old flirt. After earnestly protesting that his heart was set on Caroline, and that his existence would be an utter blank without her and her possessions, he has now coolly jilted her, calmly assuring her first love, ALFONSO, that he, WILLIAM, doesn't consider her worth quarreling about. LAWYER TYLER, as a champion of outraged feminity, ought to jump right in there and sue for breach of promise, or divorce or something.

ACCORDING to the report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the people of the United States during the year which ended with June last, drank 69,156,902 gallons of distilled liquors, 19,185,953 barrels of malt liquors, and 2,058,945 gallons of wine. The cost of all this drinking is not stated, but it must have been enormous. There is not the least danger, evidently, that the temperance agitators will work themselves out of employment.

NEW ELEMENTS IN THE CONFLICT.

It is becoming evident that the agricultural laborer vote in Britain will be an important element subject to the wiles of the politicians of both parties. Thousands of them are but now realizing the fact that for the first time they have the right to exercise their franchise and record their ballots either for or against the present government. The "poor man's friend" will have the best chance for working this role, and the cottagers will be plied most dexterously with campaign chaff. In Ireland the people are regaled with the beauties of protective tariffs as a balm for all their woes, along with the proposed independent Parliament. REV. HUGH HANNAH of Belfast proposes to levy a duty of 33 per cent on American wheat in retaliation for the American duty upon Irish linen. He is a "fair trader," and that means an advocate of retaliatory duties, favored by many leading Tories, who were instrumental in starting off on a vague tour the royal commission, which is proceeding to catechise all classes on the subject of work, wages, subsistence and profits, with the intention of producing a voluminous report, backed by a recommendation for an extensive scale of import duties, which if adopted will make the United Kingdom a very intolerable place in which to live and move; for England cannot, by any possibility, under her present land system, at least, furnish bread and beef enough for her thirty-five millions of people. The agricultural laborer in England has a hard enough time now. The books of FRANCIS GEORGE HEATH tell us much about his forlorn condition, which has been slightly improved since the agitation was commenced in Warwickshire in 1872, and the organization of clubs was undertaken by JOSEPH ARCH, who, rising from the ranks himself, has pushed the agitation for amelioration and political rights with an intelligent audacity seldom witnessed. The growth of a knowledge of the possibilities of well directed agitation among this class, which has long depended upon private beneficence and the rates to make both ends meet, has increased the opportunities of politicians, since the franchise bill was passed. During the past ten or fifteen years thousands of them have gone to the colonies to better their condition, but enough of ignorance and poverty and mental, social and moral degradation remain to enlist the sympathies of all who truly desire to be helpful to their fellow men.

THE DOMINION PREMIER.

There is no pleasing the extreme Liberals—the real Grit. They have again revived the report of SIR JOHN'S alleged decline of physical power. It is true that the Conservative chieftian is well advanced in the sear leaf of old age, considerably beyond the allotted span of three score and ten; but those who watched his conduct during the last session will attest the fact that not another member of the Cabinet was so thoroughly versed in the questions under discussion, or able to cope with the assaults of the opposition as was the premier. Endowed with powers of vitality that are perfectly marvellous, he still continues to be the peer of the youngest and most vigorous debater. With the knowledge of men that length of years has given him, none can so readily detect the weak and assailable points advanced by his detractors as can SIR JOHN. The sole survivor of those who entered Parliament on the consummation of the union of Upper and Lower Canada in 1840, he has witnessed the ascent and descent of many a noble man in our country. A new race of men has arisen—some of them veritable intellectual giants—who it would be supposed took no stock in, nor did they care for, the Josephs of by-gone days. Not so, however, with a majority of them, for with wonderful tenacity they still cling to Canada's "grand old man eloquent" and the principles advocated by him as being best suited for the requirements of the Dominion, according to their political light. It is not a surprise then that from time to time rumors are started in regard to the Premier's health by his opponents, who are longing for the "loaves and fishes" of the Treasury benches. At one time it is the Premier's stomach which they hoped was about to give way, and it was openly bruited at Ottawa last January that by maintaining a long siege of obstruction SIR JOHN could be worried to death, and thus a powerful foe removed out of their path. The siege was duly entered upon, and for three months kept up with vigor. Opposition members formed relays of obstruction, and talked with endless loquacity, all with the object of worrying SIR JOHN into dyspepsia. But the game did not succeed. The hunters became hunted. Now it is stated that it is SIR JOHN'S mind which is becoming "incapacitated," which assertion is about as correct as the former one. The fact is, SIR JOHN is in excellent health and spirits, and able to do battle in the cause of good government it is hoped, for many a day to come.

Born in England and America the demand for GORDON'S "Diary" has almost stopped. There was an extraordinary demand at first both here and there. Then the curiosity of the public seems to have been satisfied. Satiated with the long press notices, book buyers had their attention turned to other matters, and GORDON'S "Diary" is likely soon to be obtainable very cheaply at the second-hand stores. On the whole this is to be regretted, for the "Diary" though a little monotonous, save to GORDON worshippers, is a fine unveiling of the great hero, and contains all sorts of curious speculations and good thoughts.

RAILWAY PROJECTS IN INDIA.

Of vast importance to the British Empire is the intention to expend some £50,000,000 in developing the railway system of India. It is known that a very large proportion of the wheat actually produced in India is wasted, because of the insufficiency of existing means of getting it to market. It is also known, by the careful reports of experts, that vast tracts which are peculiarly adapted to wheat cultivation are now lying useless, and that, although the present production of wheat in the empire is between 200,000,000 and 240,000,000 bushels annually, it could be almost immediately doubled were communication established. With an adequate development of the railway system, it is probable that India may vie with America as the granary of the world.

Then another thing necessary for the development of India, and, through India, for an extension of our trade and influence, is the opening of direct communication with Western China and Thibet. To this end MR. A. R. COLQUHOUN planned a line of railway from the coasts of British Burmah through Northern Siam and the Shan States to the southwest frontier of China. The whole line of route has been explored; and the reports of MR. COLQUHOUN have been confirmed by travelers who have followed him, especially by MR. CARL ROCK, regarding the natural wealth of the countries to be traversed by the main line and its proposed feeders. It would bring Rangoon into direct connection with the populous towns of Zimme, Raheng and Bangkok, and, in fact, with the whole population of Siam and the Shan States, variously estimated as between 30,000,000 and 40,000,000. The only difficult part of this railway is said to be where it will have to cross the mountains between British Burmah and Siam; but even there the difficulties are not greater than have been encountered and overcome in many other parts of the world. The cost of construction at this point is estimated by MR. COLQUHOUN at $15,000 per mile; but the main length, he thinks, could be constructed for a little over £7,000 per mile. The total cost from Rangoon to Kiang-hsou, on the banks of the Mekong river, he estimates at a little over £3,000,000 sterling. This is certainly not a large outlay for the advantages which may be expected to result; and this railway, or something like it, we shall probably see ere many years; but in the meantime MR. COLQUHOUN has turned his attention to other matters, and the scheme sleeps. Another project to link our Indian possessions with the East is that of MR. C. H. LEPPER, whose idea was to construct a short line of railway—about one hundred and fifty miles—from Makum, in Assam, to Mainla, on the Irrawadi. This would connect at Makum with the Assam Railway company's line, whose terminus is to be at that place; and would, it is said, tap the trade of the province of Sze-chu-en, and thereafter that of Tibet and Western China. The western terminus of the Assam railway is at Dibrugarh, on the Brahmaputra; and between that place and Calcutta the traffic is carried by steamers.

Whether or not these two schemes be carried to fruition, there are strong reasons for prosecuting a connection with Tibet. The chief difficulty heretofore has been the opposition of China, who has guarded with jealousy her rights of suzerainty over the rich and populous country of the grand Llama. That jealousy has compelled us to employ Nepaul as the intermediary in what little trade we do with Tibet. Toward the end of the last century, Nepaul was also made tributary to China, and as recently as 1816, a Chinese army occupied Khatmandu. Now, while the Chinese are essentially a nation of traders, the Pekin government is one excessively jealous of its own authority and prestige and hence it is easy to understand the disfavor with which the efforts of Anglo-Indians have been regarded when they took a Tibetan direction.

MINISTER PHELPS, in a recent speech to a workingmen's club in England, told his hearers that there was "employment in America for all wished it, prosperity for all deserving of it and for all a welcome." This is pretty, but is it true? Are there not, as a matter of fact, a great many men in America at the present time who are very anxious to get work but can find nothing to do?

A Pretty Woman's Secret.

Fear of discovery, when she resorts to false hair and dyes, is a source of constant anxiety to her. The very persons from whom she most desires to hide the waning of her charms are the ones most likely to make the discovery. But there is no reason why she should not regain and retain all the beauty of hair that was her pride in youth. Let her use AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and, not only will her hair cease to fall out, but a new growth will appear where the scalp has been denuded; and locks that are turning gray, or have actually grown white, will return to their pristine freshness and brilliance of color. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR cures

Hereditary Baldness.

GEORGE MAYER, Flatonia, Texas, was bald at 23 years of age, as his ancestors had been for several generations. One bottle of HAIR VIGOR started a growth of soft, downy hair all over his scalp, which soon became thick, long, and vigorous.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Is not a dye, but, by healthful stimulation of the roots and color glands, speedily restores to its original color hair that is Turning Gray.

MRS. CATHERINE DEAMER, Point of Rocks, Md., had her hair suddenly blanched by fright, during the late civil war. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR restored it to its natural color, and made it softer, glossier, and more abundant than it had been before.

Scalp Diseases

Which cause dryness, brittleness, and falling of the hair, dandruff, itching, and annoying sores, are all quickly cured by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It cured SUBERBEY BOYD, Minneapolis, Minn., of intolerable Itching of the Scalp; J. N. CARTER, JR., Occoquan, Va., of Scald Head; MRS. D. V. S. LOVELACE, Lacelaceville, Ky., of Tetter Sores; MISS BESSIE H. BEDLOE, Burlington, Vt., of Scalp Disease and Dandruff. Torpidity of the roots of the hair, which, if neglected, may result in incurable baldness, is readily cured by AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. As

A Toilet Luxury

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR has no equal. It is colorless, cleanly, delightfully perfumed, and has the effect of making the hair soft, pliant, and glossy.

CHAPTER I.

WITHIN THREE WEEKS.

PERHAPS the most delightful spot in all London for a second-hand book shop is that occupied by Emblem's in the King's road, Chelsea.

Emblem's is one of two or three shops which stand together, but it differs from its neighbors in many important particulars. For it has no plate-glass, as the others have; nor does it stand like them with open doors; nor does it flare away gas at night; nor is it bright with gilding and fresh paint; nor does it seek to attract notice by posters and bills. On the contrary, it retains the old, small and unpretending panes of glass which it has always had; in the evening it is dimly lighted, and it closes early; its door is always shut, and although the name over the shop is dingy, one feels that a coat of paint, while it would certainly freshen up the place, would take something from its character. For a second-hand bookseller who respects himself must present an exterior which has something of faded splendor, of worn paint and shabbiness. Within the shop books line the walls and cumber the floor. There are an outer and an inner shop; in the former a small table stands among the books, at which Mr. James, the assistant, is always at work cataloguing, when he is not tying up parcels; sometimes even with gum and paste repairing the slighter ravages of time—foxed bindings and close-cut margins no man can repair. In the latter, which is Mr. Emblem's sanctum, there are chairs and a table, also covered with books, a writing-desk, a small safe and a glass case, wherein are secured the most costly books in stock. Emblem's, as must be confessed, is no longer quite what it was in former days; twenty, thirty or forty years ago that glass case was filled with precious treasures. In those days if a man wanted a book of county history, or of genealogy, or of heraldry he knew where was his best chance of finding it, for Emblem's, in its prime and heyday, had its specialty.

But Emblem is now old, and Emblem's shop is no longer what it was to the collector of the last generation.

It was an afternoon in late September, and in this very year of grace, eighteen hundred and eighty-four. The day was as sunny and warm as any of the days of its predecessor Augustus the Gorgeous, but yet there was an autumnal feeling in the air which made itself felt even in the streets where there were no red and yellow Virginia creepers, no square gardens with long trails of mignonette and banks of flowering nasturtiums. In fact, you cannot any where escape the autumnal feeling, which begins about the middle of September. It makes old people think with sadness that the grasshopper is a burden in the land, and that the almond-tree is about to flourish; but the young it fills with a vinous and intoxicated rejoicing, as if the time of feasting, fruits, harvests and young wine, strong and fruity, was upon the world.

It made Mr. James—his surname has never been ascertained, but man and boy, Mr. James has been at Emblem's for twenty-five years and more—leave his table where he was preparing the forthcoming catalogue, and go to the open door, where he wasted a good minute and a half in gazing up at the clear sky and down the sunny street. Then he stretched his arms and returned to his work, impelled by the sense of duty rather than by the scourge of necessity, because there was no hurry about the catalogue and most of the books in it were rubbish, and at that season of the year few customers could be expected, and there were no parcels to tie up and send out.

Behind the shop, where had been originally the "back parlor" in the days when every genteel house in Chelsea had both its front and back parlor—the latter for sitting and living in, the former for the reception of company—at this afternoon the proprietor, the man whose name had stood above the shop for fifty years, the original and only Emblem. He was—nay, he is—for you may still find him in his place, and may make his acquaintance over a county history any day in the King's Road—he is an old man now, advanced in the seventies, who was born before the battle of Waterloo was fought, and can remember Chelsea when it was full of veterans wounded in battles fought long before the Corsican Attila was let loose upon the world. His face wears the peaceful and wise expression which belongs peculiarly to his profession. Other callings make a man look peaceful, but not all other callings make him look wise. Mr. Emblem was born by nature of a calm temperament—otherwise he would not have been happy in his business; a smile lies generally upon his lips and his eyes are soft and benign; his hair is white, and his face, once ruddy, is pale, yet not shrunk and seamed with furrows as happens to so many old men, but round and firm; like his chin and lips it is clean shaven; he wears a black coat extraordinarily shiny in the sleeve, and a black silk stock just as he used to wear in the thirties when he was young and something of a dandy, and would show himself on a Saturday evening in the pit of Drury Lane; and the stock is fastened behind with a silver buckle. He is, in fact, a delightful old gentleman to look at and pleasant to converse with, and on his brow everyone who can read may see, visibly stamped, the seal of a harmless and honest life. At the contemplation of such a man, one's opinion of humanity is sensibly raised, and even house-agents, plumbers and suburban builders feel that, after all, virtue may bring with it some reward.

The quiet and warmth of the afternoon, unbroken to his accustomed ear, as it would to be a stranger, by the murmurous roll of London, made him sleepy. In his hand he held a letter which he had been reading for the hundredth time, and which he knew by heart every word, and as his eyes closed he went back in imagination to a passage in the past which it recalled.

He stood, in imagination, upon the deck of a sailing ship—an emigrant ship. The year was eighteen hundred and sixty-four, a year when very few were tempted to try their fortunes in a country torn by civil war. With him were his daughter and his son-in-law, and they were come to bid the last or farewell.

"My dear—my dear!" cried the wife, in her husband's arms, "come what may, I will join you in a year."

Her husband shook his head sadly.

"They do not want me here," he said; "the work goes into stronger and rougher hands. Perhaps over there we may get on better, at our business, it seems impossible."

It, the kind of work which he wanted was given to stronger and rougher hands than his in England, for there would be the sons of young and rough America. It was journeyman work—writing work—that he was able and he was a gentleman, a scholar, and a creature of refined and refined tastes and habits. There are, perhaps, some still living who have survived the tempestuous life of the author of "Pendennis" who remembered, of twenty or thirty years ago, perhaps one of the Greek Testament—for Greek was

"There," said Mr. Emblem, "I shall read this letter no more."

pasting his slips with compulsion—regard to duty, had been following his master's successor with obtrusive

Agen—out as was so short a time with them that it is not likely; those who do remember him will understand that the way to success, rough and thorny for all, for such as Agien was impossible.

"But you will think every day of little Iris?" said his wife. "Oh, my dear, if I were only going with you. And but for me you would be at home with your father, well and happy."

Then in his dream, which was also a memory, the old man saw how the young husband kissed and comforted his wife.

"My dear," said Claude, "if it were not for you, what happiness could I have in the world? Courage, my wife, courage and hope. I shall think of you and of Iris all day and all night until we meet again."

And so they parted and the ship sailed away.

The old man opened his eyes and looked about him. It was a dream.

"It was twenty years ago," he said, "and Iris was a baby in arms. Twenty years ago, and he never saw his wife again. Never again! Because she died," he added after a pause; "my Alice died."

He shed no tears, being so old that the time of tears was well-nigh past—at seventy-five the eyes are drier than at forty, and one is no longer surprised or disappointed, and seldom even angry, whatever happens.

But he opened the letter in his hand and read it again mechanically. It was written on thin foreign paper, and the creases of the folds had become gaping rents. It was dated September, 1866, just 18 years back.

"When you read these lines," the letter said, "I shall be in the silent land, whither Alice, my wife, has gone before me. It would be a strange thing only to think upon this journey which lies before me, and which I must take alone, had I time left for thinking. But I have not. I may last a week, or I may die in a few hours. Therefore, to the point.

"In one small thing we deceived you, Alice and I—my name is not Agien at all; we took that name for certain reasons. Perhaps we were wrong, but we thought that as we were quite poor, and likely to remain poor, it would be well to keep our secret to ourselves. Forgive us both this suppression of the truth. We were made poor by our own voluntary act and deed, and because I married the only woman I loved.

"I was engaged to a girl whom I did not love. We had been brought up like brother and sister together, but I did not love her, though I was engaged to her. In breaking this engagement I angered my father. In marrying Alice I angered him still more.

"I now know that he has forgiven me; he forgave me on his death-bed; he revoked his former will and made me his sole heir—just as if nothing had happened to destroy his old affection—subject to one condition—viz., that the girl to whom I was first engaged should receive the whole income until I, or my heirs, should return to England in order to claim the inheritance.

"It is strange. I die in a wooden shanty, in a little western town, the editor of a miserable little country paper. I have not money enough even to bury me, and yet, if I were at home, I might be called a rich man, as men go. My little Iris will be an heiress. At the very moment when I learn that I am my father's heir, I am struck down by fever; and now I know that I shall never get up again.

"It is strange. Yet my father sent me his forgiveness, and my wife is dead, and the wealth that has come is useless to me. Wherefore, nothing now matters much to me, and I know that you will hold my last wishes sacred.

"I desire that Iris shall be educated as well and thoroughly as you can afford; keep her free from rough and rude companions; make her understand that her father was a gentleman of ancient family; this knowledge will, perhaps, help to give her self-respect. If any misfortune should fall upon you, such as the loss of health or wealth, give the papers enclosed to a trustworthy solicitor, and bid him act as is best in the interests of Iris. If, as I hope, all will go well with you, do not open the papers until my child's twenty-first birthday; do not let her know until then that she is going to be rich; on her twenty-first birthday, open the papers and bid her claim her own.

"To the woman I wronged—I know not whether she has married or not—bid Iris carry my last message of sorrow at what has happened. I do not regret, and I have never regretted, that I married Alice. But I gave her pain, for which I have never ceased to grieve. I have been punished for this breach of faith. You will find among the papers an account of all the circumstances connected with this engagement. There is also in the packet my portrait, taken when I was a lad of 16; give her that as well; there is the certificate of my marriage, my register of baptism, that of Iris's baptism, my signature ——, "His arms"—the old man interrupted his reading—"his arms were: quarterly: first and fourth, two roses and a bear's head, erect; second and third, gules and fesse between—between—but I cannot remember what it was between——" He went on reading: "My father's last letter to me; Alice's letters, and one or two from yourself. If Iris should unhappily die before her twenty-first birthday, open these papers, find out from them the owner's name and address; seek her out, and tell her that she will never now be disturbed by any claimants to the estate."

The letter ended here abruptly, as if the writer had designed to add more, but was prevented by death.

For there was a postscript, in another hand, which stated: "Mr. Agien died November 25th, 1866, and is buried in the cemetery of Johnson City, Ill."

The old man folded the letter carefully, and laid it on the table. Then he rose and walked across the room to the safe, which stood with open door in the corner farthest from the fireplace. Among its contents was a packet sealed and tied up in red tape, endorsed: "For Iris. To be given to her on her twenty-first birthday. From her father."

"It will be her twenty-first birthday," he said, "in three weeks. Then I must give her the packet. So—so—with the portrait of her father, and his marriage certificate." He fell into a fit of musing, with the papers in his hand. "She will be safe, whatever happens to me; and as for me, if I lose her—because I shall lose her. Why, what will it matter? Have I not lost all, except Iris? One must not be selfish. Oh, Iris, what a surprise—what a surprise I have in store for you!"

He placed the letter he had been reading within the tape which fastened the bundle, so that it should form a part of the communication to be made on Iris's birthday.

"There," he said, "now I shall read this letter no more. I wonder how many times I have read it within the last eighteen years, and how often I have wondered what the child's fortune would be! In three weeks—in three short weeks. Oh, Iris, if you only knew!"

He put back the letters and the packet, locked the safe and resumed his seat.

The red-eyed assistant, still gumming and

Then the poor scholar, who could find no market for his learned papers, tied up his books again and went away with hanging head.

"Ugh!" Mr. James, who had been listening, groaned as Mr. Farrar passed through the door. "Ugh! Call that a way of doing business! Why, if it had been me, I'd have bought the book off of the old chap for a couple o' pounds, I would. Aye, or a sov, so seedy he is, and wants money so bad. And I know who'd have given twenty pound for it, in the trade, too. Call that carrying on business! He may well add up his investments every day, if he can afford to chuck such chances. Ah, but he'll retire soon." His fiery eyes brightened, and his face glowed with the joy of anticipation. "He must retire before long."

There came another visitor. This time it was a lanky boy, with a blue bag over his shoulder and a notebook and pencil-stump in his hand. He nodded to the assistant as to an old friend with whom one may be at ease, set down his bag, opened his notebook, and nibbled his stump. Then he read aloud, with a comma or semicolon between each, a dozen or twenty titles. They were the names of the books which his employer wished to pick up. The red-eyed assistant listened, and shook his head. Then the boy, without another word, shouldered his bag and departed on his way to the next second-hand book shop.

He was followed, at a decent interval, by another caller. This time it was an old gentleman; he opened the door, put in his head, and looked about him with quick and suspicious glances. At sight of the assistant he nodded and smiled in the most friendly way possible, and came in.

"Good morning, Mr. James; good morning, my friend. Splendid weather. Pray don't disturb yourself. I am just having a look round—only a look round, you know. Don't move, Mr. James."

He addressed Mr. James, but he was looking at the shelves as he spoke, and, with the habit of a book-hunter, taking down the volumes, looking at the title-pages and replacing them; under his arm he carried a single volume in old leather binding.

Mr. James nodded his head, but did disturb himself; in fact, he rose with a scowl upon his face, and followed this polite old gentleman all round the shop, placing himself close to his elbow. One might almost suppose that he suspected him, so close and

A Woman in Love.

[Kansas City Journal.]

Did you ever see a woman who could reason when she is in love? Such an individual would be an excellent investment for a dime museum, and would run any number of months without change of programme. She would surpass "The Witch of Wall Street," and even distance "The living skeleton." But you may calculate on one thing: She is not to be found.

If she makes up her mind that she has discovered the one man in all the world, she will speedily divest him of vices and invest him with virtues. If he is addicted to drink, she will dream of the reformation in store for him through the magic of her affection. No matter if you point out to her that bleary old bloat that hangs around the cheap grogshop; no consequence that you show her that pale, determined woman who drags out her life in a shop, sewing-room or school-room, her lines will fall in different places. It is a marvelous, incredible thing, this love portion which blinded Titania's eyes to the donkey's head on the trunk of Bottom, the weaver.

The Strain of Social Life.

[Harper's Bazar.]

A sagacious writer who has firm faith in the superlative beauty of American women, thinks also that the women of New York take no pains to preserve their youth and good looks. "By the time Lent sets in," he declares, "they look completely fagged, and faces which ought to be flushed with healthful beauty are wan and wrinkled, and bodily movements which should be free and elastic give evidence of utter weariness. Nor do all these young women get in summer the relief from social strain which they so much need."

There is some truth in this statement, and there is some exaggeration. A day at Jerome park, or at the Country club, or on the Staten Island cricket-grounds, reveals scores of fresh and lovely faces. Yet the truth is worth consideration; since the social life of New York is unquestionably a prolonged dissipation, and must tell sooner or later upon women who try to live up to it.

Quality in Eggs

[Exchange.]

The Poultry World says that the difference between an egg laid by a plump healthy hen, fed with good, fresh food daily, and an egg laid by a thin, poorly fed hen is as great as the difference between good beef and poor. A fowl fed on garbage, weak slops, with very little grain of any kind, may lay eggs, to be sure, but when the eggs are broken to be used in cakes, pies, etc., they will spread in a watery way over your dish, or look a muddy white, instead of having a rich, sight yellow tinge. A "rich egg" retains its shape as far as possible, and yields to the touch of a knife or spoon with more resistance and gives you the conviction that you are really beating something thicker than water or diluted milk.

A Kitchen in Paris.

[Foreign Letter.]

The average Parisian kitchen is about five feet wide and nine long, with one window opening into a dismal yard nine feet square. Along the wall runs an iron-edged table four or five feet long and about two feet wide. In this table are cut from four to six square holes, and underneath runs a shelf of stone or iron of just the same size as the table itself. The space between this shelf and the table is closed in front by iron doors. This block against the wall near the general name of fourneau, and, with the exception of roasting, it is on this block that all the cooking is done. There is the greatest possible economy in fuel.

A Woman's Newspaper.

[Mexico Cor. Boston Globe.]

One of the most successful newspapers in Mexico is The Album de la Mujer (The Woman's Album), a paper that hits the feminine taste, and is a credit to the able managers and editors, Concepcion Gimeno de Flaquer. This paper makes, I am credibly informed, a good annual profit for the lady who owns it. Then there are papers devoted to music, to agriculture, to the bull ring and the theatres, to the doctors, to public school teachers, etc. Every class seems to have its organ provided for it.

A Drink for Hot Weather.

[Brattleboro Household.]

In very hot weather, especially if one is somewhat debilitated, a glass of lemonade with a teaspoonful of elixir of calisaya, or one-half teaspoonful of tincture of Peruvian bark added to it, taken every afternoon, will prove most refreshing. We have passed summers in very unhealthy places in comparative comfort, by daily use of this simple tonic. The calisaya is the nicest, giving a delicate perfumed flavor, not so bitter as the bark, but a little bitter is very nice with the lemon.

Truly Matched.

[Columbia (S. C.) Register.]

Those who are truly matched were married born for each other. Those who are married, however, are not always those who were born born for each other. But what is to believe under such circumstances? That is a difficult question to answer, requiring more experience in life than we claim for ourselves. The only help for it that we can see is to be a true man and woman for it is all, and believe that, though not made for each other, you may yet live for each other.

PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON EXCEPT SUNDAY.

Victoria, Saturday, Sept. 19, 1885.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

While the TIMES is always prepared to give publicity to the views of correspondents on any question of interest to the public, provided facts are given, couched in unobjectionable language, we wish it to be understood that we do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by the writers thereof.

Nor can we give room to duplicates of letters that have appeared in our contemporaries either in this city or elsewhere in the province. Correspondents, therefore, will save time and trouble in preparing such for THE TIMES, as they will be rejected.

Our space is valuable, and brevity, as far as possible, should be observed in writing on any topic, and on ONE SIDE of the sheet only.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Sheriff Phair is in possession of Mr. Uriah Nelson's store at Eagle Pass.

—The Lion Brewery has changed hands.

—Before purchasing Real Estate or insuring your life, see Rand Bros.

—The Olympian brought sixty-two hogs to-day for A Guils.

—A slide at tunnel No. 9 delayed a down train 9 hours on Monday last.

—The steamer McNaught is to be sold by auction at New Westminster next Thursday.

—Messrs. Waitt & Co., are taking orders for 1886 calendars, which are in new elegant designs.

—It has been raining steadily in Eagle Pass for two weeks. It has rendered the wagon road almost impassable.

—Mr. Pendola, of Savona, has purchased the interest of the late John Velatti in the brewery at that place.

—The Fraser river steamers appear to have plenty passengers and freight at present.

—Messrs. Sexsmith & Ternan, of New Westminster, erected a mill for chopping grain at Blackie's shop on Columbia street.

—Edward Jones, who arrived in San Francisco last week from this city, suicided at the International Hotel by taking opium.

—Mr. J. G. Moylan, Inspector of prisons, is carrying back with him to Ottawa samples of B. C. potatoes, for exhibition purposes.

—Large hordes of Chinese arrive by every steamer from the mainland, and will still further crowd the now overflowing Chinese quarter of the city.

—The 26 Chinese, who arrived on the Mexico, Friday, were allowed to land, after they paid their $50 per head—an amount of $1300.

—The O. R. & N. Co's warehouse is now packed with freight, the amount received each day being so great that it cannot be removed.

—The Western Slope brought the mails and passengers from New Westminster yesterday. The Yosemite is loading salmon and will arrive to-night.

—Mr. Joshua Davies will sell at his sales-rooms, Wharf St., on Tuesday, the 29th inst., a large assortment of unclaimed customs goods.

—The traffic returns of the Grand Trunk Railway for the week ending September 5th, just posted, were $312,283, against $363,404; showing a decrease for this year of $50,121.

—List of letters detained for postage: Messrs. Galt Bros. & Co., Montreal, Que.; J. C. Bossi, Yale, B. C.; T. Sydney Dobbin, Esquimalt Naval Yard; A. L. Fisher, Santa Rosa, Cala.; J. C. Bertrand, Lynden, W. T.

—The traffic returns of the Canadian Pacific Railway from September 1st to 7th were $186,000, and for the corresponding period in 1884 they were only $146,000, which shows an increase of $40,000 for the current year.

—Rev. David Tatum, minister of the Friends Church, from Cleveland, Ohio, will preach in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning next, and speak on the subject of temperance, in the same place, in the evening at 8 30, or just at the close of the churches.

—The people of this province will hail with delight the announcement made in another column that the C. P. R. company intend, on assuming control of the government section, adopting a scale of charges similar to those in force in the east.

—Some prominent capitalists are now making a tour of the Sound country, presumedly looking up coal interests. Among the number are Messrs. Crocker, of the Central Pacific road, Mr. Pease, of San Francisco, and two parties from British Columbia.

—At Seattle a special steamer was expected to arrive to-day from Victoria with an excursion party to attend the mill there to-night. Our neighbors will probably be disappointed, as Victorians don't go much on fiasco exhibitions, such as is likely to be given.

—Mrs. Hampson, the celebrated English Evangelist, is expected to hold a series of evangelistic services in this city shortly. All the different Christian denominations that wish to co-operate in the movement, are requested to meet at the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Sunday afternoon next, at the close of the afternoon service.

—The Geo. W. Elder will engage for some time in transporting grain from Portland to San Francisco. The colliers Willamette and Walla Walla will also go into the same service. They will load coal at Seattle for Portland, take wheat there for San Francisco and then return to Seattle.

—Rev. D. Tatum, delivered an interesting temperance address in Temperance Hall last evening to a large audience. The gentleman has been engaged in active temperance work for the past 14 years, and is able to adduce many logical arguments in support of the cause of prohibition. Another address will be delivered by him Sunday night.

—An inquest to enquire into the facts of the assault made with an axe in the hands of Mrs. Mary Adams and her 14-year old son upon Martin Archibald on Sunday morning, August 30th, at Belleville, Ont., from the effects of which he died on Sept. 3rd, was concluded last evening. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of "wilful murder."

—The Olympian brought freight for: A P H & Co, G & N R M R & Tys, C Strauss & Co, Marvin & Tilton, Van Volkenburg Bros, A Bossi & Co., C G Major, J Abrams & Co, S Leiser, D S Curtis & Co, Neufelder & Ross, T H Noble, W M Bennett, J Wilson, S J Pitts, Caine & Munsie, J A Mara, G B Ordano, A Bossi & Co, D McPhaden, McDonald Bros, A Guils, J Hamilton, B Carr, T T Candell, A Mclean, A Cowan, F Cooke, W & J Wilson, B Williams, P McQuade & Son, W M Ross, Mrs H Jeffries, Pearson & Works, Lindsay & P, W G Cameron, J Brown, J Crawford, D M Tallway, W J Jeffries, Moores & Co, J B Ferguson, M R Murray, John Finlayson, J Weiler, W L Cusack, E B Marvin, A Cowan, Bell & Larkin, W Wilson & Co, A Meyer & Co, J Isaacs & Co, Strauss & Pape, Brown & White, J F Wardle, A E House, J W Murray, Powers Bros, R Cunningham, E G Prior, Langley & Co, A Greenway.

GEN. MANAGER VAN HORNE

To Visit the Terminus in October—Terminal Facilities.

THE TIMES is in a position to state that soon after the track is connected, General Manager Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will visit the terminus to arrange for the immediate commencement of work on the terminal facilities; to superintend the laying out of the wharves and docks, with a due regard to the future requirements; placing of buildings, such as the round house, which will be the largest between Montreal and this coast, that in Winnipeg alone excepted; warehouses, buildings for stores department; freight and passenger depots; repair shops for locomotives and tenders; blacksmiths shop and foundry; car shops; offices for staff officials and many other matters connected with the terminus. The delay in proceeding with the works there has arisen from the fact that negotiations have been pending between the government, the private property owners and the railway authorities in reference to minor matters not considered by many of much moment, yet fraught with much regarded by the company as of vital importance to a final and full settlement of all matters under negotiations. These have all been disposed of by mutual concessions.

"Alle Samee as Debil."

A large turtle was killed at the Oriental on Wednesday, about one o'clock. The operation was performed by cutting the throat from ear to ear, only a small connection between the head and body being left. Six hours afterwards a Chinaman entered the room, when the turtle raised his head high in the air and worked his flippers up and down as vigorously as when in his native element. John was horrified, and rushing in the house told the proprietor "dat ting all samee as one debil." No amount of coaxing can induce the superstitious Mongol to enter the room again, unless he has a lighted taper in his hand.

Funeral of the Late Mr. Powers.

The funeral of the late Wm. J. Power, whose body was brought down from Farwell on Thursday, took place this forenoon. The pall-bearers were Messrs. McCullough, Connolly, F. McDonald, W. McKeon, A. B. Gray and H. Noble. The terrible grief of the broken-hearted widow, while the remains were being deposited in the cemetery, drew tears of sympathy from the eyes of every spectator. Deceased was a native of Waterford, Ireland, and was highly respected by every person who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

Coolies Coming in Crowds.

The Western Slope brought to the city to-day from the mainland about 120 Coolies, who were lately paid off on the railway. Each one carried all his earthly possessions at the two ends of his pole, and both the unwashed Coolie and his dirty bag and baggage were perhaps as disgusting a crowd of humanity as ever polluted our shores. This however, is only the advance guard of the tatterdemalion horde still in the interior preparing to march upon Victoria thousands strong. What they are all going to do when they get here is a problem the anti-Chinese Union will have to solve.

Chinese Capitalists.

Chung Wing San and Ung Mook are at the head of the deputation of Chinese capitalists who arrived in Victoria yesterday. The whole party paid the fifty dollar capita tax, and expect to get it back again when they leave the country. The two Chinamen named were residents of Victoria about seven or eight years ago and they accompany their friends here to see what openings there are for business investments. Chinatown is to-day considerably excited about the intentions of the types.

Montreal to British Columbia.

It is announced from Ottawa that the Canadian Pacific railway will be opened on the 5th of October for the carriage of freight and passengers from Montreal, the present eastern terminus, to British Columbia. The Lake Superior section, over which the iron was laid some months ago, is now ready for heavy traffic, and on the 5th prox. trains can be run from the eastern part of this province direct to Montreal.

Discharging the Chinese.

Stetson & Post, and all the other mill owners in Seattle have discharged all the Chinese employed at their mills. This is certainly the most practical way to solve the Chinese labor question. The time may not be so far distant when Victoria employers may follow the example set them by Seattle. Persistent hammering will break the largest rock into fragments, and the increasing efforts of the white labor organizations will yet accomplish their purposes.

British Columbia Salmon.

A Sarnia, Ont., special announces the arrival there of the steamer United Empire of the Northwest Transportation Co., with ten thousand barrels of flour from Duluth and five carloads of wool for Boston and seven loads of canned salmon from British Columbia for Hamilton, Toronto and Montreal. This is the first shipment of British Columbia salmon by water.

Freight by the Slone.

The Western Slope brought 2000 cases of salmon from the Delta Cannery Co., which will be put on the bark Hermine now loading. She also brought 1250 feet of lumber for the C. P. N. Co., 87 dry hides for Messrs. Strouss, Bovenstein and Heathorn; 20 sacks of potatoes for Neufelder & Ross and a considerable quantity of other miscellaneous freight.

A Coming Event.

A marriage, between a young Victorian of twenty-one or twenty-two summers, and one of our city's fair daughters is on the "tapis." It will take place, under the rose, on Tuesday, and the happy couple will leave by Wednesday's steamer on their wedding tour.

The Bishop's Residence.

The mansard roof on the new brick residence for Bishop Seghers is now in course of construction. It will add the third story to what is otherwise a large and commodious building, and will be finished in a style in keeping with the excellence and beauty of the general design.

The Montana Murderer.

The prisoner Morgan, held for extradition on a charge of killing a man in Montana, was to-day remanded by the Chief Justice until the 26th inst. It is expected that by that time witnesses will have arrived from Helena.

A Rare Opportunity.

Dr. Mintie, of San Francisco, who is admitted to be the most successful specialist on the Pacific Coast, is now represented in this city. The rooms of the doctor are at the Oriental hotel, where consultation may be had free.

What Sporting Men Rely On.

When Lewis R. Redmond, the South Carolina moonshiner, cornered, after for eight years eluding the government officials, was asked to surrender, he exclaimed:

"Never, to men who fired at my back!"

Before he was taken, five bullets had gone clear through him, but strange to relate, he got well, in the hands of a rude backwoods nurse."

By the way, if Garfield had been in the hands of a backwoods nurse, he might have lived. A heap of volunteer testimony against the infallibility of the physicians has been accumulating of late, and people are encouraged to do their own doctoring more and more. It is cheaper and quite as certain.

Before Detective Curtin of Buffalo caught Tom Ballard he "covered" him with his revolver. Tom saw the point and tumbled!

Joe Goss was "covered" a few weeks ago and he tumbled, and so did Dan Mace. Death "fetched em" with that dreaded weapon—kidney disease. But they should have been lively and drawn first. They could easily have disarmed the monster had they covered him with that dead shot—Warner's safe cure, which, drawn promptly, always takes the prey. It is doubtless true that sporting men dread this enemy more than any mishap of their profession, and presumably this explains why they as a rule are so partial to that celebrated "dead shot."

Redmond was right. No man should surrender when attacked in the back. He should "draw," face about and proceed to the defence, for such attacks, so common among all classes, will fetch a man every time unless "covered" by that wonderfully successful "dead shot."—Sportsman's News.

A Mammoth "Globe."

The Toronto Globe, of the 9th inst., celebrated its 41st anniversary by issuing a mammoth sheet of 40 pages, the largest newspaper issued in Canada beyond dispute, and seldom equalled in cities in the United States, outside of Chicago, where a large sheet is occasionally printed containing the delinquent tax list. The issue referred to contained 412 separate advertisements, embraced in 200 columns and 34 pages of space. Thirty-five thousand copies were published, the paper for which weighed nine and a half tons. If laid in a continous strip, page by page, they would reach nearly 255 miles. It was a splendid effort, well worthy the energy and pluck of the publishers, and the merchants and manufacturers throughout Canada, who so liberally patronized it and a credit to the city of Toronto, with whose interests it has so long been identified.

The Winnipeg Evening News.

This is the title of a new journal just started at Winnipeg. It is neatly gotten up, contains the latest news from all parts, while its locals are spicy and interesting. In politics it is independent. It appears to be well patronized as an advertising medium, for its columns are crowded with announcements. We wish it success.

Back Again.

Mr. Onderdonk was expected at Eagle Pass from the east on Monday last. He was, however, laid up at the Columbia river with rheumatism, and Mr. Wright sent over a spring wagon to bring him to Eagle Pass.

The ladies of the Methodist congregation are engaged in preparing a bazaar in aid of the new church and any assistance will be gratefully received by the following ladies: Mrs. D. Spencer, Mrs. Shakespeare, Mrs. Barktobler and Mrs. G. Grant.

THE EASTERN END.

The Canadian Pacific Extensions to St. John and Boston.

Mr. George Stephen, President of the C. P. R. a few days since visited Boston and other New England centres in regard to eastern connection of the road, and went at length into the plans of the Canadian Transcontinental road, particularly the Lachine bridge. From this bridge it is proposed to build southeasterly to St. Johns, on the Richlieu river, where the Central Vermont system of roads will be met. If the Stanstead, Shefford & Chambly road and its eastern extension, the Waterloo & Magog road, both of which belong to the Central Vermont system, can be acquired at a sufficiently low price, they will be purchased, thus taking the line as far east as Sherbrooke, where it connects with the International road, which is already built eastward to Lake Megantic, and can in a very few months be completed to the New Brunswick railway, thus making the line from Montreal to St. John. If the roads of the Central Vermont cannot be acquired on terms to suit, it is in the programme to parallel the Stanstead, Shefford & Shambly as far as West Farnham (some twenty miles), where connection is made with the Southwestern, which is already under control of the Canadian Pacific and the Passampsic companies, and which affords excellent lines to Boston and Portland. From Newport, Vt., the Passumpsic's Massawippi valley extension can give the line a connection with the International. It is the wish of the Central Vermont people that the Canadian Pacific shall make its short line to the Atlantic from Ottawa, instead of from Montreal, running over the Canada Atlantic, which is owned by people connected with the Central Vermont, and which crosses the St. Lawrence by ferry at Coteau, some thirty miles above Montreal. It is said by those interested that this is, at least, as good a place for a bridge as the Lachine rapids. From a point on the road a few miles southeast of this crossing they say it is only about fifteen miles across a level country to St. Johns, and that the construction of a road there would give the Canadian Pacific almost a straight line from Ottawa to St. John, N. B. It cannot be learned, however, that there is any intention of adopting this route. Should President Stephen succeed in raising the money on the bonds of this eastern end of his great national line, which appears probable, another year will witness the near approach to completion of a transportation enterprise that will dwarf the most magnificent system or combination of systems on the American continent.

NEW TO-DAY.

GRAND

Colonial Exhibition!

IN LONDON, ENGLAND, 1886.

Fifty-four Thousand Feet Reserved for Canada.

First Royal Exhibition Commission since 1862.

THE Colonial and Indian Exhibition to be held in London, England, commencing May 1st, 1886, is intended to be on a scale of great magnitude, having for object to mark an epoch in the relations of all the parts of the British Empire with each other.

In order to give becoming significance to the event a Royal Commission is issued for the holding of this Exhibition, for the first time since 1862, and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has been appointed President by Her Majesty.

The very large space of 54,000 square feet has been allotted to the Dominion of Canada by command of the President, His Royal Highness.

This Exhibition is to be purely Colonial and Indian, and no competition from the United Kingdom or from foreign nations will be permitted, the object being to exhibit to the world at large what the Colonies can do.

The grandest opportunity ever offered to Canada is thus afforded to show the distinguished place she occupies, by the progress she has made in AGRICULTURE, in HORTICULTURE, in the INDUSTRIAL and FINE ARTS, in the MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES, in the NEWEST IMPROVEMENTS IN MANUFACTURING MACHINERY and IMPLEMENTS, in PUBLIC WORKS by MODELS and DESIGNS; also in an adequate display of her vast resources in the FISHERIES, and in FOREST and MINERAL wealth, and also in SHIPBUILDING.

All Canadians of all parties and classes are invited to come forward and vie with each other in endeavoring on this great occasion to put Canada in her true place as the premier colony of the British Empire, and to establish her proper position before the world.

Every farmer, every producer, and every manufacturer, has interest in assisting, it having been already demonstrated that extension of trade always follows such efforts.
